When you're learning about something new, it's easy to feel overwhelmed by the sheer amount of relevant information available. This informative article should help you focus on the central points.

For those who have no idea on the HOWs of dealing with an iPhone based on its web surfing features, here are some tips on easy manipulation of your device and ways on dealing with your phone without having to worry about being stuck in an uncompromising situation with your iPhone.

Tip 1 – Make commands easier

How? Get a keyboard that's bigger than the usual feature. It goes with the practical reason that if you can't manipulate something because it just doesn't go with how you want it to be, then, improvise. If you think the device is already giving you a hard time to work things out with it, try getting something that'll suit your preference. Just by tapping through Safari's address bar, it summons a keyboard that's on-screen. Once you rotate the device in a horizontal manner, the Safari will likewise be rotated in a horizontal manner. The important thing is that, Safari has a more standardized feature which will make data entry a breeze.

Tip 2 – Home page creation

If you are using your Safari in its typical version which runs through your Macintosh, home page set-up is much easier. You can't do this directly on your phone, although you can make your way through by adding your personal home page to the list of your bookmarks then move it at the list, preferably on top. This may require an extra tap but then again, you can get your chosen web page without having to go around twists and turn and achieving nothing.

Tip 3 – URL sharing

So far, we've uncovered some interesting facts about Iphone. You may decide that the following information is even more interesting.

Want to send the URL of a page that you are viewing in the web to a friend? Try tapping the address bar then choose "Share". An e-mail message, a new one, will be sent that'll contain the address being opened in "Mail". Be careful to choose recipients, adding your comments and then tapping on "Send".

Tip 4 – Making that Safari call

There will come a time that you'll find a number inside Safari that you'll be interested to call, you don't need to go to the fuss of jumping to a phone component. You can do this by tapping on the number and let the phone dial it for your sake. This will work with URLs and phone numbers which are embedded in e-mails. Respectively, tapping will either open a whole web page or make a call.

Tip 5 – Investigate different links

In order to summon the information balloon in Safari, you have to hold your fingertip downward on a particular link instead of a tap. In this way, the balloon will display the underlying URL. This also happens when you hold a particular link in "Mail". On the arrival of e-mails addressing updates on your accounts, just press and hold on that link in order to find out if you'll be taken to the site that the e-mail has indicated you to.

Tip 6 – Start from the top

Upon encountering a web page that has a long view, and you suddenly decided on getting back to Safari, you need not scroll to the top. What you can do is to try tapping on the gray status bar which can be seen on top of the iPhone's monitor. Immediately, you will be transported to the web page you are currently browsing.
